Where Weather Man Acts Like Villain

It was Real Hot in Kansas This Summer.

Topeka, Kan.—It has been rather hot all over the United States this summer, but in Kansas the weather man has been acting up like a villain.

For instance, Joe Trowbridge is a farmer in Gove county. He was furmaned in Gove county. He was employed on the farm of Rev. Gerrit Snyder near Gove City. One afternoon he was directed to walk over to some stacks of hay and bring in some equipment. He walked through the hay and the heat was so intense that he felt as if he were being roasted.

The friction of the heat of his shoes on the hot ground and the heat of the sun actually set his shoes on fire. Trowbridge took off his shoes and began fighting the fire in the stubble field. Others came to his aid and when the fire was out Trowbridge was taken to Dr. R
